MEMORANDUM FOR: Director, Foreign Broadcast Information Service
THROUGH : Chief, Operations Group
SUBJECT : Monthly Report — Panama Bureau — April 1985

I. GENERAL

The bureau continued its ROSET cruising efforts against television targets outside its traditional coverage area. The effort against Peruvian, Chilean, and Argentine television transmissions via satellite is now completed, and the effort against Brazilian television nearly complete. We have found that for the time being, at least, Brazilian channels on the 21.5W INTELSAT are in parallel on the recently launched 65.0W BRASILSAT.

Responding to a special request from MOD, we conducted a cruising spotcheck survey of West European television monitorable in Panama. The two-week check confirmed our observations of January, and no new sources of West European television were identified.

A gear-box problem with the operational ROSET was quickly fixed by two UAI contractors — who flew in from Texas on the 24th — and the bureau's ROSET engineer. A loose pin in the azimuth brake caused the brake to fail, and this in turn loosened an opposite gear-box. During the time the ROSET was immobile, we were able to lock it on the 34.5W INTELSAT, the major source of our press agency coverage. For a few days we lost coverage of Mexican, Venezuelan, and Colombian television.

II. OPERATIONS

A. Monitorial/Editorial

Bureau operations continued at a hectic pace in April. In El Salvador, elections to the legislative assembly were held on 31 March. After a lengthy vote count process, complete with the usual charges of fraud and improper vote count procedures, the ruling Christian Democratic Party emerged with a parliamentary majority. Jose Napoleon Duarte's administration and the rebel FMLN-FDR forces continued their lengthy, unsuccessful haggling over a date and venue for a third round of the peace talks initiated last December.

Colombia's President Belisario Betancur went on a whirlwind ten-day tour to discuss the Central America situation and the Contadora Group's efforts, and other economic and political topics of international interest. Betancur's tour included a trip to the United States that afforded him the opportunity to receive a firsthand account of President Reagan's Holy Week peace proposal for Nicaragua. In turn, the Colombian president discussed the Reagan initiative with Central American leaders during subsequent stops on his tour, highlighting what otherwise would have been a routine coverage situation.

The Sandinist leadership in Nicaragua categorically rejected President Reagan's peace proposal, reaffirmed their refusal to negotiate with the contras, and insisted on direct negotiations with the United States. Daniel Ortega apparently coordinated the official Nicaraguan response with the Cubans during an unannounced and little publicized trip to Havana and meeting with Fidel Castro on Easter Sunday. The official Nicaraguan media provided extensive criticism of the Reagan proposal, as well as of the President's bid for $14 million in aid for the Nicaraguan counterrevolutionaries. Following the U.S. House of Representatives' rejection of the aid package for the contras, President Daniel Ortega left on a tour of East Bloc countries to try to drum up $200 million in much-needed economic assistance.

Normally tense relations between Nicaragua and Honduras were ~~✓~~ acerbated even more in early April when a squad of Nicaraguan soldiers in seven military vehicles unwittingly entered Honduran territory and were taken prisoner. Following a flurry of clarifications, communiques, and coordination, the vehicles and soldiers were returned to Nicaragua.

In Honduras, the political turmoil continued unabated with President Roberto Suazo Cordova under steady fire from dissident factions of his own Liberal party, the political opposition, and from labor and peasant sectors. Amid charges, rebuttals, countercharges, and political debates, the bureau's production from Honduran sources was more than twice its average monthly figure.

In Guatemala, rumors of a coup d'etat prompted by widespread protests over new taxes forced Head of State General Oscar Mejia Victores to cancel a scheduled trip abroad in mid-month. Following several days of close monitoring of this critical situation Mejia Victores repealed the announced tax reform law, restoring peace to the nation.

In Cuba, Fidel Castro kept up his recent steady pace of lengthy talks with the media, granting an interview to a group of Ecuadorean journalists following a state visit by Ecuadorean President Leon Ferbres Cordero. Earlier in April, the bureau processed a 25,000-word PRENSA LATINA report on "excerpts" of an interview granted by President Castro to the Mexico City newspaper EXCELSIOR.

After unsuccessfully trying to operate the NEFAX facsimile transmitter on our four-wire dedicated remote circuit, NEFAX units were installed at the bureau and at our Honduras remote site using a regular two-wire commercial telephone line. Following two weeks of trial transmissions and tests, feed procedures were set up and NEFAX transmission of selected Honduran newspaper items began on 15 April. Print quality is generally fair to good. Increased accuracy, improved selection of excerpts and a wider selection of material are some of the benefits that offset the higher cost of facsimile transmission. In the future we plan to use similar NEFAX press feeds from our other Central American remote sites. If we could use our dedicated remote lines in place of the commercial telephone lines for NEFAX transmissions the monetary savings would be significant.

At the suggestion of Key West Bureau, a five-year-old phone patch plan was dusted off and updated to allow Panama to assist Key West with processing of lengthy Cuban material not aired over Havana International Service. A successful test of the phone patch capability was made on 10 April.

B. Communications

In April the bureau's primary AUTODIN communications experienced outages totaling over 160 hours. On 24 April an outage began and lasted until 3 May. The ten-day outage, the longest in the history of the bureau, was eventually restored after the Panama Automated Relay flew a specialist in from the United States to work on the Army communications computer. During the outage, the bureau made heavy use of the commercial Telex for its priority altroute and formalized procedures to use the Fort Clayton Telecommunications Center as an altroute for the bureau's incoming and outgoing routine traffic.

Following coordination with FBIS headquarters, the bureau promulgated six Address-Indicating Group packages for consumers interested in materials on selected topics in the Latin American coverage area. The bureau will begin using the six AIG packages on 3 June. Key West and Paraguay Bureaus and FBIS headquarters are authorized users for five of the six packages and all FBIS bureaus and FBIS headquarters may use the sixth AIG package for materials on Cuba.

C. Lateral Services

A reverse phone patch from the bureau to our independent contractor in Tegucigalpa was used to provide the American Embassy in Honduras with a recording of a 51-minute radio interview that Honduran Armed Forces Commander in Chief, General Walter Lopez Reyes, granted a Radio America newsmen on 15 April.
